ASHLAND NSP/LAKEFRONT: Agencies Present Workshop

You are invited to . . .

Sunrise on Chequamegon Bay, Ashland, Wis.

. . . an EPA Superfund workshop

Interested in learning more about the Superfund program for cleaning hazardous waste sites? Here's a great opportunity!

U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, along with Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources, is offering "An Introduction to Superfund." In this interactive workshop, you'll find out how EPA investigates polluted sites and what it takes for them to become Superfund sites. You'll learn how cleanup plans are developed and how EPA chooses the best option, as well as what happens after the cleanup is finished. The workshop will clarify the roles of federal, tribal, state and local governments as well as how community organizations and people like you can make your voices heard.

The workshop is designed for everyone who wants to learn about the Superfund program. Whether you're part of an environmental organization, a local official, tribal member, resident, business owner or student, you'll benefit from this event. EPA instructors, with help from the federal and state Ashland NSP/Lakefront site cleanup team, will lead you through the process.

While this workshop is about the Superfund process in general, you'll learn how important you can be in helping EPA and DNR make decisions about the Ashland NSP/Lakefront site cleanup.

Date, Time and Place

Wednesday, Sept. 21, 2005, 3 – 9 p.m.

Northland College, Ashland, Wis.

The locations of the building and meeting room for the workshop will be provided with your confirmation of registration. A 1-hour break will be provided for participants to eat at the college dining hall.
